

UNIVERSITY OF BIRMINGHAM

NATIONAL | Life
stories

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH

UK Research and Innovation

Call for research participants: Histories of Sexual Health, 1918-1980

Did you receive or provide sexual health care in Britain before 1980? Would you be willing to be interviewed about your experiences?

- A new research project at the University of Birmingham is exploring histories of sexual health in Britain from 1918 to 1980.
- The project team is working with the British Library to develop a major new oral history collection on sexual health, healthcare and wellbeing before the AIDS crisis.
- The oral histories we collect will be used to develop resources to help improve training and patient care today.
- More information about the project can be found here.

If you are interested in participating or would like more information about this project, please contact Dr Claire Martin (c.martin.6@bham.ac.uk).